THE NEED

Many factors impact the health of our residents: employment, income, access to public transportation, neighborhood quality, educational level, access to safe public spaces (parks) and food insecurity. All these factors - individually and collectively - impact health outcomes. In the Greater Tampa Bay area, many have poor health outcomes and do not have health insurance:

- 1 in 3 adults with HH income below $25,000 has no health insurance (only 5% for HH Inc. > $50K).
- 1 in 4 adults (ages 26-34) has no health insurance.
- Hispanics are overrepresented in Hillsborough County vs. the State of Florida (118 index).
- Hispanics suffer disproportionately versus other races in Hillsborough County from diabetes and hypertension (114 and 109 index vs. Whites).

THE SOLUTION

Recognizing the need to provide basic medical care to the underserved population in southeast Hillsborough County, made up largely of migrant Hispanic farm worker families, Catholic Charities established its Free and Charitable Clinics in 2000.

Under the leadership of then Bishop Robert N. Lynch, the first clinic opened in Dover, at San Jose Mission (Catholic Charities-owned affordable housing for agriculture industry employees).

St. André Clinic opened in east Pasco county in 2009 to serve a largely identical, low-income population. In 2013, building on our partnership with BayCare Health Systems (through St. Joseph's Hospital), La Esperanza Clinic opened to serve the Wimauma area.
